Dear colleagues, dear friends of the World Education Forum,

A few years ago we launched the World Education Forum, as an organisation of educators intending to push politicians all over the world forwards to reduce the enormous number of children without or with very little access to education. The motto: “Educators will advocate: education for every child.”

In the meantime we have active WEF ambassadors and sympathisers in the Netherlands, England, Wales, Bulgaria, Australia, Nepal and the United States. In these countries there are WEF platforms developing or already set up. Really a great result.

To reduce our costs we have reorganised the WEF from a foundation to an international online network. To express our new way of working, we’ve changed the WEF URL in www.worldeducationforum.online. In each country we want to establish now a national WEF network of educators or at least many ambassadors and friends who are willing to help us to spread the news.

You have expressed your interest during the last years by subscribing to the WEF-newsletter and some of you also signed the global petition.

What we ask from you is to spread this newsletter to your colleagues and friends. We also ask you and your colleagues and friends to sign the petition on our website: <http://worldeducationforum.online/petition-text/>

We are very happy to inform you that Lydia van Rietschote, Director of the World Education Forum office in the Netherlands, has agreed to become our Ambassador and will continue to help and promote the international network of the World Education Forum as she has done during the past 7 years.

The undersigned are going to coordinate the global WEF network, to maintain the (new) website and to produce 3-4 times a year a newsletter to all networkers!

In case you need any support, please refer to info@worldeducationforum.online.
